

About our speaker:

Ms. Amy UyenTram Nguyen, RDH, MS

Ms. Amy Nguyen is a Clinical Assistant Professor in the Department of Dental Ecology at the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry. She is known for her excellent and well-rounded skills in the dental profession, having more than 16 years of experience in administration, clinical, and academics. She is a graduate of Cal State University in San Bernardino with a Bachelor's degree in healthcare administration. She also received BS and MS degree in dental hygiene sciences education from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Ms. Nguyen has presented and consulted numerous continuing education seminars for dental teams on local, state and national levels in fields such as ergonomics, spa dentistry, soft tissue management, antimicrobials and local delivery therapies, dental substance abuse, and cultural diversity.

Ms. Nguyen is an active member of ADEA, ADHA, AADR, IADR, NPWA, the North Carolina Dental Hygiene Academy of Advanced Studies, and lifetime member of UNC GAA. Also, she has published related articles and abstracts in professional journals. Besides her professional expertise, Ms. Nguyen's most priceless attribute is something all too rare in today's rushed world: She cares and shares, striving to prepare her students not only for the test, but more importantly for their patients.
